RPH has the best food in Australia

Royal Perth Hospital has better food than any institution in Australia.

The Hospital has scooped a major catering award for the second year running - the award for Excellence in Catering was presented at last night's National Restaurant and Catering Institute Awards in Sydney.

Hospital support service manager Warren Treadgold said the award was quite prestigious.

"It basically says the RPH has the best institutional catering in Australia," he said.

Mr Treadgold said 200 catering staff provided thousands of healthy and wholesome meals to patients, visitors and staff every day.

"The hospital believes it's catering is of a high standard and this award is recognition of that," he said.

The award was collected by RPH retail catering manager Tony Moxham and patient catering manager Colin Hunter.
